

Swidler

Club Modernity for Reluctant Christians

Can a person a) cherish his or her freedom, b) critically question every ideology, c) be convinced of the evolutionary character of finite reality, d) open to revelation in all the world's major religions, and e) a committed Catholic Christian at the same time? Yes. And Leonard Swidler shows us how. The formula is simple in design but massive in its erudition. He summons learning gained from his prolific career, combines it with common sense, and filters it through all five of these convictions to propose a faithful portrait of Jesus of Nazareth. But following Jesus entails a program for churches to be catalysts for our common pluralistic life in our new global society. Seekers looking at Christianity for meaningful human existence today cannot pass up this fresh, personal, critical, insightful, imaginative, and empowering reappropriation of the Christian story by one of its leading interpreters.

Roger Haight, S. J.
Scholar in Residence, Union Theological Seminary

What Christians, and particularly Catholic Christians, need above all today, in this doubting age, is a believable version of their faith which is also continuous with the tradition to which they are committed. This gift is what Leonard Swidler has now produced in this remarkable book. A great many people will receive it with relief and will stand more firmly in their faith as a result.

John Hick
Fellow of the Institute for Advanced Research in Arts and Social Sciences, University of Birmingham, U.K.

Cover art:

Matins
Jean-Pierre Auguier

Layout & Design:

Glenn Ferrell

Dialogue Institute
Ecumenical Press
Temple University,
Philadelphia, PA
<http://www.jesdialogue.org>

US $15.95

ISBN 978-0-931214-12-7

9 780931 214127

91595 >

Club Modernity

ECUMENICAL
PRESS

Leonard Swidler